Why Sponsor and Exhibit at CHoPS 2027

CHoPS 2027 offers sponsors and exhibitors direct access to a highly specialised international audience working on the science and practice of conveying and handling particulate solids. The conference brings together experts from academia and industry in a focused setting that supports meaningful technical conversations and long-term collaboration.

Hosted at TU Delft in Delft, The Netherlands (6–9 July 2027), CHoPS 2027 combines scientific depth with strong industry relevance. The programme is expected to include keynotes, peer-reviewed presentations, posters, and technical exchange, creating multiple moments for sponsor visibility and engagement throughout the event.

Why this audience matters

CHoPS attracts participants involved in:

- bulk solids handling and storage
- particulate process design and optimisation
- conveying systems and equipment
- modelling, simulation, and measurement
- industrial innovation and applied research

This makes CHoPS especially relevant for organisations active in sectors such as pharmaceuticals, food, chemicals, energy, process technology, and mining/materials handling.

What sponsors gain

By sponsoring or exhibiting at CHoPS 2027, your organisation can:

- increase visibility in a targeted technical community,
- showcase products, services, and expertise to relevant professionals,
- generate leads and business conversations in a focused environment,
- strengthen thought leadership through association with a leading conference,
- build partnerships with researchers and industry stakeholders, and
- connect with future talent from TU Delft and the wider international community.

Exhibition and on-site visibility

CHoPS 2027 is designed to create repeated interaction moments between delegates and sponsors across the conference programme, including registration, networking moments, and breaks. This supports sustained exposure rather than a single contact point and helps sponsors get more value from their presence.

A focused opportunity

Unlike broad trade fairs, CHoPS offers a niche, high-relevance environment where technical quality and subject alignment are central. For many sponsors, this means fewer but more valuable conversations.
