

Roger Gilabert

I am currently an associate professor and researcher at the University of Barcelona. My research interests include second and foreign language production and acquisition, task-based needs analysis, task design and task complexity, individual differences and L2 production and acquisition, multimedia learning, and game-based learning and SLA. I have been a member of EuroSLA for quite some time now. I have been a member of the EuroSLA Executive Committee in recent years in the positions of ordinary member and vice-president. I know the spirit of EuroSLA well by now, and I believe I can continue contributing ideas and my experience as an ordinary member if you give me your confidence and your vote. Thank you.